Annual Report

Fiscal Year 2017
(July 1, 2016 – June 30, 2017)

Annual Report

Office of Scholarly Communications
Fiscal Year 2017
(July 1, 2016 – June 30, 2017)

This report covers the Scholarly Communications team, and activities involving the institutional repository (IR), library publishing operations, outreach and advocacy, and copyright consulting.

1. Scholarly Communications team

The Scholarly Communications team consists of Linnea Fredrickson, Sue Ann Gardner, Margaret Mering, and Paul Royster. The team was reassigned from the Digital Initiatives and Special Collections Department (Katherine Walter, Chair) to the Computing Operations and Research Services Department (DeeAnn Allison, Chair) near the end of FY 2017.

2. The Institutional Repository: <http://digitalcommons.unl.edu>

Services:

More than 200 faculty, students, and affiliates received some special assistance from the staff during the year (see the list in Appendix I). Assistance included articles harvested and prepared for posting, deposits, account revisions, copyright questions, and other miscellaneous works.

Size:

The IR grew over the year by 6,877 items, to a total of 92,870 (14,212 ProQuest ETDs—which are not included in our usage statistics—and 78,658 UNL items) of which 95% were downloaded during the year. The UNL DigitalCommons is by far the largest and most-downloaded of the over 500 bepress-hosted IRs (statistics available via bepress.com).

Usage:

The IR furnished 6,645,812 downloads over the period, bringing the total from inception to more than 43 million. The average of 84.5 downloads per item is consistent with past years.

Downloads	# of items
≥ 100,000	1
≥ 10,000	30
≥ 1,000	898
≥ 100	11,528
≥ 10	48,732
≥ 1	74,460

According to Alexa.com, the UNL DigitalCommons represents about 15% of all unl.edu web traffic, and is the most accessed subdomain of unl.edu;
<http://www.alexa.com/siteinfo/unl.edu> .

The most popular series is Library Philosophy and Practice, followed by Nebraska Extension documents, Tractor Test Laboratory reports, Electronic Texts in American Studies, and faculty publications from the psychology and management departments. A schedule of the 127 series with at least 10,000 downloads is attached as Appendix II.

The most popular single item again was "Sinners in the Hands of an Angry God" from E-texts in American Studies, with more than 137,000 downloads. A list of the top 200 items is attached as Appendix III.

Usage continues to be strong among educational institutions and networks, both in the United States and abroad. Government and military institutions are also among the highest users. Among our Big 10 sister institutions, we find 35,338 recognized downloads from them collectively.

Other notable institutions include Cambridge (2,489), UCLA (2,482), Cornell (2,236), Columbia (2,156), Oxford (2,080), Harvard (2,053), Stanford (1,975), MIT (1,666), Duke (1,287), Chicago (1,010), Princeton (911), and Brown (785).

Many international institutions are represented, including a large number from the Global South. Closer to home, we are serving the metropolitan Omaha education commission, UN-Kearney, UN-Omaha, UN-central, and the state of Nebraska. There were also downloads from 9 U.S. state departments of education. A list of identified institutions with more than 750 downloads each is provided in Appendix IV.

Downloads went to all 237 countries. After the United States (41%), the most went to India (6%), the United Kingdom (5%), the Philippines (5%), and Canada (4%). A complete list of the numbers of downloads by country is given in Appendix V.

There were 884,280 hits on metadata pages, bringing the annual total traffic (with full-text downloads) to more than 7.5 million hits. The top 50 series receiving metadata hits are shown in Appendix VI.

Recognition:

In January 2017, the Cybermetrics Lab, a research group belonging to the Consejo Superior de Investigaciones Científicas, the largest public research body in Spain, released their annual "Ranking Web of World Repositories" <<http://repositories.webometrics.info/en/world>>. The UNL DigitalCommons was ranked 11th among all world repositories, 7th among those in North America, 6th among all educational/research institutions, and 3rd among world universities—behind only the University of California system and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. A copy of the ranking and the Nebraska Today story about it is attached as Appendix VII.

Other:

PubMed LinkOut program — The UNL DigitalCommons was accepted into the National Institutes of Health PubMed LinkOut program. This program provides links from the PubMed citations database to full-text versions hosted in public-access repositories. The minimum requirement is 1,000 documents, which we are in the process of identifying and accumulating.

Library of Congress copyright deposit for electronic journals — The UNL DigitalCommons was invited to submit text from 8 journals to the electronic deposit program of the Copyright Office. The first deposits were made in FY 2017.

ORCID — During FY 2017, bepress enabled a dedicated metadata field for ORCID persistent digital identifiers in the IR.

3. Library Publishing Operations

Digital Commons ranked among world's best

The Digital Commons, a collaborative service by the University Libraries, was recently ranked among the best digital repositories in the world.

The Digital Commons achieved a notable milestone in January. In the most recent release of Cybermetrics Lab's Ranking Web of Repositories, Nebraska's Digital Commons was ranked 11th worldwide, 7th in North America and 6th among educational and research institutions.

The Digital Commons are an online repository of research materials that have been published by university faculty, staff and students.

Out of about 2,300 repositories rated, this ranking places the Nebraska repository in front of the University of Michigan (12th), Harvard University (53rd) and Cambridge University (114th), to name a few.

The Digital Commons contains more than 90,000 full text items and the content has been downloaded nearly 41 million times.

The annual rankings are based on number of pages (10 percent), number of referring subnets for inlinks (50 percent), mentions in social networks (10 percent) and number of files in the Google Scholar database (30 percent). The Nebraska repository ranks very highly in the inlinks, social networks and Google scholar database metrics.

The ranking agency, Cybermetrics Lab, is a research group belonging to the Consejo Superior de Investigaciones Científicas, the largest public research body in Spain. The Lab is devoted to the quantitative analysis of the Internet and web contents, especially those related to the generation and communication of scientific knowledge.

Paul Royster, coordinator for the Digital Commons, credits the ranking not only to the number of items included in the repository, but also to a well-rounded selection of popular research content.

“Many faculty, staff, students and emeriti faculty, voluntarily contribute their publications to make the repository a reality,” Royster said. “We couldn’t do our work without the buy-in of the university community.”

Visit the Digital Commons website to access the papers -- all available to read for free for anyone with an Internet connection -- and to view a real-time map that shows the worldwide downloads of papers.
